

INTRODUCTION

The National Volunteer Fire Council (NVFC) is pleased to provide this directory of behavioral health professionals that are equipped and ready to help firefighters, EMS providers, dispatchers, and rescue workers. Emergency responders face unique challenges that can have a significant impact on behavioral health, and it is important that they have access to providers that understand this. The providers listed in this directory are behavioral health professionals vetted by the Firefighter Behavioral Health Alliance (FBHA) that either have firsthand experience with the fire and emergency services or have completed a training course through the Firefighter Behavioral Health Alliance to educate them on the fire service and the specific challenges they face.

This directory is updated on a monthly basis. Information about each provider, their credentials, and how to contact them is included. While some of the providers on this list are identified as non-licensed professionals (e.g., chaplains or peer support specialists), most are identified as licensed behavioral health providers (e.g., psychologists or social workers). If you are looking for a behavioral health provider, it is always important to check directly with that provider for proper state licensing.

This directory is part of the NVFC's Psychologically Healthy Fire Departments (PHFD) initiative and is made possible thanks to a Fire Prevention and Safety Grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency. The PHFD initiative falls under the NVFC's Share the Load™ program, which provides resources, tools, and training relating to firefighter and EMS behavioral health. Learn more at www.nvfc.org/help.

Behavioral health professionals who would like to be added to this directory can fill out this form.

This directory is intended for informational purposes only. The NVFC and its partners are not responsible for any outcomes that occur from use of this directory and do not make any claims regarding medical conditions or treatments. The NVFC and its partners are not affiliated with or responsible for any of the providers listed in this directory. If you are having an emergency or suicidal thoughts, call 9-1-1 immediately.

Unresponsive Providers

In an effort to ensure that first responders utilizing the NVFC's Directory of Behavioral Health Professionals can be served in a timely and efficient manner, we ask that all providers respond to voicemails/emails within four business days (this excludes providers who have indicated being out of office via voicemail/email). If a first responder or the NVFC does not hear back from a provider with their availability within four business days, the provider will be deactivated from the directory until they have communicated to the NVFC that they are ready to accept patients. We ask that all providers who disagree send a formal email to the NVFC with the reason no response was provided.

If you have reached out to a provider who is not following the above policy, please complete this form, which is anonymous, to make the NVFC aware of the provider.

If you need immediate assistance, help is available through the Suicide & Crisis Lifeline at 988, the National Helpline at 1-800-662-HELP (4357), or utilize the Crisis Text Line by texting HOME to 741741.

NVFC FIRST RESPONDER HELPLINE

NVFC members and their household family have access to the NVFC First Responder Helpline, which provides benefits similar to an employee assistance program.

What is included in the First Responder Helpline?

This assistance program provides NVFC members and their household family members with immediate assistance in a crisis moment as well as confidential counseling, resources, and referrals to assistance for a range of issues, including:

- Stress management
- Depression
- Family conflict
- Anxiety
- Relationships
- Financial or legal concerns
- Substance misuse
- Grief or loss
- Problem gambling
- Child or elder care

What is the background and experience of the call center?

The NVFC First Responder Helpline is provided through Provident by Business Health Services (BHS), a leader in providing emotional and behavioral health consultations, in partnership with Responders 1st Call. BHS has been providing mental and behavioral health services to organizations since 1983. The contact center is staffed by master's level clinicians with an average of five years of experience specially trained in assisting and supporting first responder groups.

What stress management and work-life services are offered?

The First Responder Helpline can provide up to five telephone coaching sessions (or the number of sessions allowed by state law) with master's degreed counselors who identify stress triggers, teach coping techniques, and develop an ongoing stress management plan. In addition, this program offers consultation, resources, and referrals for the everyday concerns that can cause distractions and loss of focus when a first responder needs it most, including family, legal, and financial concerns.

How do I access the NVFC First Responder Helpline?

The First Responder Helpline number is available in the members section of the NVFC web site. Once logged in, go to Member Resources and then Member Benefits to find the number.

What if I'm not an NVFC member?

Join the NVFC for $21 to access the First Responder Helpline. If you or someone you know needs access to the First Responder Helpline and are not able to purchase a membership, you can sign up for a complimentary membership to receive access to the Helpline along with all the NVFC member benefits.

Professional Bio:	With over 30+ years in the field of behavioral health treatment and medicine, the last eight years have been the best of my career. It was then that I began working with those in the fire service, shortly after experiencing my first California wildfire. Since then, I have witnessed first-hand the long term effects of "the job." Along with years of clinical training in treating those in the fire service, I have spent countless hours on ride-alongs and hanging out in the station around the dinner table listening to stories and sharing a meal. It was there I began to understand how firefighters think, roll, and process everything they do, see, smell, and hear. As the saying goes, "You can't unsee the things you've seen." My mission: To assist firefighters in minimizing the long-term effects of the job on all levels, keeping the mind as fit as the body. No need to suffer alone and in silence. "It is ok, not to be ok."

ART is an eye movement therapy (similar to eye movements that occur during dreaming) that is different from traditional talk therapy because you don't have to talk in detail about what happened; instead you will find relief from the memories that play on a loop in your brain. ART works to reprogram the way in which distressing memories and images are stored so that they no longer trigger strong physical and emotional reactions.
